Education in Switzerland

Dr Holland writes to the Springfield (Mass) Republican, from Lausanne, Switzerland, as follows

There are numerous schools in Lausanne mainly supported by foreigners This is the case in many of the larger towns of Switzerland English, American and German people send their children here to learn French One thing, however, is painfully true—Switzerland is no longer a cheap place for board or education. The introduction of railroads and the influx of foreigners have raised the price of real estate in all directions, and I can board and educate my children cheaper in Springfield to-day than I can in Switzerland It takes 2 500 francs a year for board and instruction in a Lausanne boarding school for a boy That is about $500 a year in gold, outside of the cost of his clothing The nominal price is 2 000 francs, but the extras are sure to raise it to the larger sum Notwithstanding this, the business of the teacher here is very poorly paid. These schools are kept by men who teach nothing, or next to nothing, themselves, and who hire all their teaching done for them, for or next to nothing Since my residence here a grand teachers' convention has been held in Lausanne, attended by some eight hundred teachers An attempt was made to get together all schoolmaster-dom of French Switzerland, and such a regiment of seedy black coats I never saw before I was informed by one of this noble army of teachers that the pay which they receive ranges from 200 to 500 francs a year—from $40 to $100 in gold! When I told him of the wages which some of our young women command at home in his calling, he opened his eyes most incredulously A portion of their pay comes from the State and a portion from voluntary contribution When I tell you that there are portions of Switzerland in which the greed for land is so great that public supervision is instituted to keep parents from half starving their children in order to purchase it, you can imagine how hard it is to get anything, for schools by public or popular contribution There is here, in Lausanne a normal school but the Swiss people reap little benefit from it The wages of teachers are so low that they leave their country at the first invitation and as the school is excellent the invitations are many and constant.

Female education is of the same sort as prevails generally in Europe. The American idea of a woman's education is not entertained here at all Apparently, women never touch mathematics, and only in the very highest schools do they learn anything of the natural sciences If a woman is French, she learns English and French If she is French Swiss, she learns German and English If German Swiss, she learns French and English If she is English she learns French, German and Italian—the latter language if she has time Here in Switzerland men and women now take to learning English for it is out of those who speak the English language British and Americans that they get their living In all the hotels and stores, English is spoken by somebody Housekeepers and tradesmen send their sons and daughters to England that they may become competent to assist in that business at home As a consequence the multiplication of languages here the Swiss are taking a very speckled complexion so far as the leading elements of civilization are concerned The universal presence of the English has driven all costumes out of the land None of the old picturesque dresses of the different cantons are now seen So far the effect has been toward unification, but German Switzerland obtaining its best literature from Germany has been deeply impressed with German rationalism and French Switzerland equally open to the influence of France has become deeply tainted with French infidelity The English and Americans are making their impression and as the majority of these are pleasure seekers and have only a transient residence, you can imagine that they do not have a very deep impression of the real earnestness of their character

Overcharges in American Hotels

From Putnam's Monthly for December

The Rev Newman Hall has been writing down his reminiscences of America and among other things, he gives an story of the way in which he was treated at no less a place than the Tremont House in Boston though the gross overcharge he complains of would doubtless have been made at many of the hotels in our country that are proudest of calling themselves first class establishments Mr Hall should have been informed by his friends, all of whom if they had traveled in the country know very well that by a first class hotel in America is meant a place where the highest possible charges are made for the least possible service and the least personal comfort. Hotel keeping in America has now become a speculation nothing more and the problem presented to the owners is—and very successfully it is being solved too—to reach the premium to the very highest point that it is found the public will bear, to diminish the comforts given in exchange for the money paid to the lowest point consistent with keeping up appearance, and to drop off the body gently as soon as they are gorged They then sell out to a new set of hotelers, and the game begins again The extortion complained of by Mr Hall, we do not believe peculiar to this Boston hotel, it is the rule, doubtless at all the other Boston hotels, as it is in New York, Philadelphia, Washington, and other large cities of the Union To go to a first-class hotel in New York city, and to get in to a hack in the same city are things only to be thought of by those who are rich enough to be indifferent to the cost of living or too proud to betray that they are not indifferent. It is the same if one goes to a first-class restaurant. Let him calculate over so sleepily and accurately, from the few data furnished him, and he will find that the proprietor's calculations are made from a very different arithmetic from his own. If he be bent on going to these places, he must dismiss from his mind all care for the cost, live without counting it beforehand, and never allow himself to think of it afterward.

In this way he will not only enjoy the peace of mind that comes from an undisturbed digestion, but he will propitiate the clerk, the waiters, and the porters, and the man who can once succeed in doing this, may live in any hotel he chooses, as long as he can keep on doing it. The rule is simple It is this

Pay with a cheerful countenance everything that is demanded, give gratuities at every step for the slightest services, or for none at all ask for nothing out of common, make no complaint to anybody of anybody else and perhaps, on your leaving the bland bejewelled and pomatumed clerk will offer his hand to the impassioned Roman. This, however, is not to be depended upon as certain. There are clerks who make it a rule never to shake hands with anybody who has not lived six months in their hotels, or whom they have any reason to suspect is going away because he cannot afford to stay longer

Utilization of Coal Tar in Berlin.

The Berlin gas works furnish about 190 000 hundred weight annually of coal tar, which they sell for thirty to forty cents per hundred Of this tar about five-sixths are used in the preparation of roofing paper, and the application to buildings The remaining sixth is subject to dry distillation, the portion passing over a temperature of one hundred and seventy six to two hundred and fifty seven degrees of the Fahrenheit scale, and consisting principally of benzole, being taken by the aniline manufacturers The products of a heat of from two hundred and fifty-seven degrees to three hundred and twenty Fahrenheit, enter as the India rubber factories, the price decreasing as the boiling point rises. The oil passing over at from three hundred and twenty to [illegible] various complex forms, as [illegible] the radical phenyl [illegible] carbonic acid or carbolic, the temperature is not carried beyond three hundred and ninety two Fahrenheit. The product of the higher temperatures is used principally for impregnating railroad sleepers and telegraph poles, [illegible] called impregnation oil The final residuum amounts to about sixty five per cent and is sold in that state to the manufacturers of asphaltum, who add [illegible] to it [illegible] into various other combinations

Judging by Appearances.

Some years ago there arrived at the Cataract House, Niagara Falls, an odd-looking man, whose appearance and deportment were calculated to contrast with the crowds of well dressed and polished figures which adorned that celebrated resort He seemed to have just sprung from the woods; his dress was made of leather, almost greasy in need of repair apparently not having felt the touch of a needle for many a long month. A worn-out blanket that might have sorted ill with the rest, was buckled to his shoulders by a large knife hung on one side, balanced by a long, rusty tin box on the other, and his beard, uncropped, tangled and coarse, fell down upon his bosom, as if to counterpoise the weight of the thick, dark locks that supported themselves on his back and shoulders. This being, strange as the spectators, strangely half civilized, half savage, pushed his way into the dining room, unstrapped his little burden, leisurely looked around for the landlord and then unceremoniously asked for breakfast. The host at first drew back with evident repugnance to receive this uncouth form among his gentlemen visitors, but a few words whispered in his ear satisfied him and the stranger took his place in the company, some shrugging their shoulders, some staring, some laughing outright. Yet there was more in that one man than in that whole company He had been entertained with distinction at the tables of princes, learned societies to which the like of Cuvier belonged, had bowed down to welcome his presence; kings had been complimented when he spoke to them, in short, he is one whose fame will be growing brighter when the fashionables who laughed at him, and many much greater than they shall have been forgotten From every hill top and deep shady grove the birds these blossoms of the air, will sing his name The little wren will pipe it with her matin hymn; the oriole carol it from the slender grasses of the meadows; the turtle dove roll it through the secret forests; the many voiced mocking bird bear it along the air, and the imperial eagle the bird of Washington, as he sits far up on the blue mountains, will scream it to the tempests and stars. He was John J Audubon, ornithologist

The Rights of the Press.

From the Philadelphia Inquirer

In a case tried in the Court of Queen's Bench in London, last week, for damages in a suit of libel the complaint was that the defendant, the publisher of a newspaper, had published matter derogatory to the character of the plaintiff. The defense was, that the language complained of was spoken in Parliament by a member in his place, and that the journal made a fair report of that speech, which being one of a public character, was a privileged communication and could not subject the publishers to action if the report was honest The Court has sustained this view of the case and the plaintiff was defeated The Court must have taken the view of the case that, as words spoken in Parliament are protected from being questioned elsewhere, the same protection was extended to journalists who might publish those words It has frequently been held that a fair report of a legal proceeding, or of any proceeding essentially of a public character may be published for information, free from malice, and that the person doing so will not thereby incur any liability This is nothing but justice The laws in relation to libel are in many respects unjust and unsuited to the manners and wants of modern society For many years past the courts of justice have been weakening the stringency of the common law doctrines upon the subject, in accordance with the manners and customs of the age and of the real interests of society While it will be admitted that licentiousness of the press ought to be restrained, it is unjust to continue in force those laws which hamper and weaken the independence of the Press. Public sentiment indeed has had its influence in producing enlightenment upon these subjects, and in softening the opinions of the people in regard to libels and the responsibility of the publishers It is certain that if the strict doctrines of libel held under the English common law were to prevail there would not only be an end to the independence of the press, but to its usefulness and reliability The maxim, the greater the truth the greater the libel" would make almost every truth setting able that could be published in a newspaper, and render it only a medium of gross flattery

Hash.

From the New York Commercial Advertiser

The city of churches and "swell" parsons, of one horse politicians and Dutch gentility, of fashionable heights and Irish swamp patches, is fast earning the soubriquet of "Hashtown Beecher long ago described Brooklyn as a roast" for lame chickens of New York and to dry his definition is more thoroughly applicable A vast portion of its population have their business pursuits here, and only go there for the night because rent is cheaper and their morality not less secure. But the great feature of Brooklyn is its boarding houses Walk along the streets about the breakfast hour in the morning and about the incense of hash greets your nostrils from every open window [illegible] through [illegible] evening and the aroma of hash flavors every passing breeze Even when asleep the omnipresent hash is with you and keeps lurking at your bedside through the [illegible] You have repeated dreams of hash, and the nightmare changes as often as the landlady changes her cook You toss about your bed with a fearful sensation of being strangled and awake in the morning to find it nothing but a hash Hash is to the Brooklynites what potatoes are to the dwellers in Kerry. The very trees look as though they had been fed upon it Most of the houses have been painted a hash color The door plates look like patches of hash carelessly thrown there Whenever the good people of the churches get together for a row wow upon politics or religions subjects they generally have a hash time of it Even their news is retailed from the New York papers. The ladies too wear hair puddings as a substitute for chignons, in consequence of which they are more attractive to young men This explains the reputation of Brooklyn for fascinating women Indeed wherever you go, or whatever you see or taste in this city set upon a hill, hash as a visible or invisible agent confronts you with its horrible presence, and seems to exert an influence which no four nothing but an army of French cooks can ever wholly dispel.

Fashionable Boots and Shoes.

What stupid ninnies some persons will persist in making themselves, by continuing to wear boots and shoes that give them pain every moment, and which hinder their easy and graceful movements It is, indeed, true, as the Scientific American affirms, that this silly fashion must be creating a rich harvest for the corn doctors, and it is sure to result in a greater or less degree of personal deformity Especially may the latter consequence be expected in the cases of young children When the bone is soft as it is in youth, the bones of the feet, pelvis and toes, as well as the feet, are thrown into abnormal positions, and while the bones retain their plasticity the effect of such unnatural tension is sure to be perpetuated in the shape of crooked shins, bandy legs, elephantine toe joints and other painful ills. Let us hope that before these evils shall have greatly multiplied, fickle fashion may remove the cause, and give us something more sensible and comfortable than those too-screws which are giving to the human [illegible] Chinese [illegible] to the feet will do not attempt to require the feet to adapt themselves to the unnatural form of many fashionable boots and shoes

The recent convention of freight agents in Chicago recommended that alcohol, highwines, liquor and fruit spirits, in casks or barrels, now in first class, be changed to third class, also omitting the words "and peach" after "brandy," "whiskey," now in first class, beginning, that "fruit or grain seed, in second class, and grass seed in third class, shall read "grass seed or clover" That oils, except petroleum and carbon oils, petroleum, or rock oil, now in third class, be changed to fourth class The following resolution was adopted

Resolved, That the following be adopted as the minimum weights at which the articles named will be contracted and billed subject to correction of actual weight when definitely ascertained Highwines, per barrel, 300 pounds; pork, 320, and beef, 340 per barrel; hams, per tierce, 400 pounds; lard, per tierce, 440 pounds; dressed poultry, per box, twenty-five per cent; [illegible] per [illegible]

BEST INVESTMENTS

THE

First Mortgage Bonds

OF THE

UNION PACIFIC

RAILROAD COMPANY.

900 Miles Completed.

A limited amount of the First Mortgage Bonds of the Union Pacific Railroad Company are offered to the public, as one of the safest and most profitable investments.

1. They are a first mortgage upon the largest and most important railroad in the country.

2. By law they can be issued to the Company only as the road is completed, so that they always represent a real value.

3. Their amount is limited by act of Congress to Fifty Million Dollars on the entire Pacific line, or an average of less than $20,000 per mile.

4. Hon. E. D. Morgan, of the United States Senate, and Hon. Oakes Ames, of the United States House of Representatives, are the trustees for the bondholders, to see that all their interests are protected.

5. Five Government Directors, appointed by the President of the United States, are responsible to the country for the management of its affairs.

6. Three United States Commissioners must certify that the road is well built and equipped, and in all respects a first class railway, before any bonds can be issued upon it.

7. The United States Government lends the Company its own bonds to the same amount that the Company issues, for which it takes a second mortgage as security.

8. As additional aid, it makes an absolute donation of 12,800 acres of land to the mile, lying upon each side of the road.

9. The bonds pay six per cent. in gold, and the principal is also payable in gold.

10. The earnings from the local or way business were over FOUR MILLION DOLLARS last year, which, after paying operating expenses, was much more than sufficient to pay the interest. These earnings will be vastly increased on the completion of the entire line in 1869.

11. No political action can reduce the rate of interest. It must remain for thirty years—six per cent. per annum in gold, now equal to between eight and nine per cent. in currency. The principal is then payable in gold. If a bond, with such guarantees, were issued by the Government, its market value would not be less than 110 to 115 per cent. premium. As these bonds are issued under Government authority and supervision, upon what is very largely a Government work, they must ultimately approach Government prices. No other corporate bonds are made so secure.

12. The loans will soon be exhausted. The claim have sometimes been paid a million a day, and nearly twenty millions have already been sold. About ten millions more may be offered. It is not improbable that at some time not far distant, all the remainder of the bonds the Company can issue will be taken by some combination of capitalists and withdrawn from the market, except at a large advance. The long time the high gold interest, and the perfect security, must make these bonds very valuable for export.

All the predictions which the officers of the Company have made in relation to the progress and business success of their enterprise, or the value and advance in the price of their securities, have been more than confirmed, and they therefore suggest that parties who desire to invest in their bonds will find it to their advantage to do so at once.

The price for the present is 103 and accrued interest, at the rate of six per cent. in currency from July 1st, 1868, and will be received by

VERY LATEST NEWS.

Gen. Sheridan's Report.

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 2.

The following official report of the recent Indian battle has been received at military headquarters:

IN THE FIELD, DEPARTMENT OF THE NORTH CANADIAN RIVER OF THE JUNCTION OF BEAVER CREEK, INDIAN TERRITORY, November 29th.

To Brevet Major General W. A. Nichols, A. A. G. Division of the Missouri.

GENERAL:—I have the honor to report for the information of the Lieut. General, the following operations of General Custer's command:

On November 23d, I ordered him to proceed with eleven companies of his regiment, the 7th Cavalry, in the southerly direction toward the Antelope Hills, in search of hostile Indians. On the 26th he struck the trail of a war party of Black Kettle's band returning from the north, near where the eastern line of the Handle, of Texas, crossed the main line of the Canadian. He at once corralled his wagons and followed in pursuit over to the head waters of the Washita, thence down that stream, and on the morning of the 27th surprised the camp of Black Kettle, and after a desperate fight, in which Black Kettle was assisted by the Arrapahoes under Little Raven, and the Kiowas under Sandota, we captured the entire camp, killing the chief, Black Kettle, and one hundred and two warriors, whose bodies were left on the field, all the stock, ammunition, arms, lodges and robes, and fifty three women and their children. Our loss was Major Elliott, Capt. Hamilton and nineteen enlisted men killed; Brevet Lieut. Col. Barnitz, badly wounded, J. W. Custer, Second Lieut. Z. March and eleven enlisted men wounded. Little Raven's band of Arrapahoes, and Sandota's band of Kiowas, were encamped six miles below Black Kettle's camp. About eight or nine hundred of the animals captured were shot, the balance kept for military purposes. The highest credit is due to Gen. Custer and his command. They started in a furious snow storm and traveled all the while in snow about twelve inches deep. Black Kettle's and Little Raven's families are among the prisoners. It was Black Kettle's band who committed the first depredations on the Saline and Solomon rivers in Kansas. The Kansas regiment has just come in. They missed the trail and had to struggle in the snow storm, the horses suffering much in flesh and men living on buffalo meat and other game for eight days. We will soon have them in good condition. If we can get one or two more good blows there will be no more Indian troubles in my department. We will be pinched in ability to supply and nature will present many difficulties in our winter operations, but we have stout hearts and will do our best.—Two white children were recaptured. One white woman and one white boy, ten years old, were brutally murdered by the Indian women when the attack commenced.

[Signed] P. H. SHERIDAN,
Major General Commanding.

The Admission of Colorado.

A Denver dispatch of yesterday says:

Both parties held separate Conventions yesterday to consider the subject of the admission of Colorado into the Union. Both Conventions were fully attended. The Republican Convention passed resolutions with one dissenting voice, requesting Congress to admit Colorado at once on such terms precedent as they deem necessary. The Democratic Convention is not as yet harmonious. The Chairman of the Central Committee and other prominent members advocated the admission on any terms, but many opposed it except that negro suffrage is not made part of the Constitution. Both conventions passed resolutions asking Congressional aid in the construction of railroads centering in Colorado.

Maj. Gen. Canby and wife, accompanied by Maj. Gen. Easton and Lieut. Morris, are in the city.

The Electoral College of Missouri will meet at Jefferson City to-day and cast their vote for President and Vice President.

Letter from Senator Morton.

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.

The World contains the following letter from Senator Morton, of Indiana:

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30.

To the Editor of the World:

DEAR SIR:—In the New York World of the 25th inst., I find an article from which I quote as follows: "A telegram to an evening paper states that Senator Morton, soon after the opening of the session, will introduce a bill directing the immediate payment in greenbacks of that portion of the 5-20 bonds issued for five years. If this report be correct the course of that Senator on this subject is conspicuous for vacillation. Eight months ago he was an open advocate of the so-called greenback theory. During the Presidential canvass he publicly recanted, if he is now about to propose and advocate such a measure as that described in the telegram, his renunciation must have been a mere political dodge, a feigned surrender of his principles to promote the success of his party." In the first place I do not intend to introduce a bill directing the immediate payment in greenbacks of that portion of the 5-20 bonds issued for 5 years, and have never said I did to Secretary McCulloch or anybody else. In the next place I did not during the canvass recant what I said in the Senate to the payment of the $ 20s in greenbacks. No speech by me to that effect has been made. What I argued during the canvass was that the first duty of the Government was to return to specie payments, which, when accomplished, would settle all questions as to the mode of paying the bonds. I further argued that the Government had a right to issue new legal tender notes and make them applicable to payment of bonds, arguing such notes could not be made to sustain the same relations to the bonds in law or equity that was sustained by the existing notes, and that the further issue of such notes would indefinitely postpone the return to specie payment. These propositions were fully stated in my speech in the Senate last summer, in which I argued the legal right of the Government to use the existing legal tender notes in payment of the bonds. I also argued at various times during the canvass whatever might be the law on the subject the Government could not pay the bonds or any considerable portion in connection when the currency remained depleted, and that improvement of the currency by bringing it up to par was a necessary condition precedent to payment of bonds in gold. That if the Government could not procure gold enough to redeem three hundred and sixty-five millions of legal tender notes it was folly to talk about paying bonds in gold. That the question of the mode of paying bonds will become important only by continuance of a depreciated currency without taking steps to improve. That to take our gold in the Treasury and apply it to the purchase of bonds in the market which will not fall due for fourteen years, would not be paying the bonds but shelving them, and would be an improper use of money by which the paper of the Government is overdue and dishonored before redeemed. These positions are not inconsistent with anything I said in the Senate.

I am, very respectfully, yours,
[Signed] O. P. MORTON.

General News.

Fort Lafayette is almost entirely destroyed.—The magazine did not explode. Some twenty shells exploded last evening in the center of the fort, but no one was hurt. Fire still burning.—It has recently been garrisoned only by a sergeant's guard from Fort Hamilton.

A note dated Fort Jervis, Dec. 1st, from Mr. Fisher, states he left New York early on Monday morning to settle up some affairs relative to the rolling mill of the Erie Co., and for no other purpose. The member of the Erie Co., he says is not one who has it been in his charge, but in the treasury of the company, and the rival receivers can get at it now as well as when he was in the city.

Justice Balcom, of Binghamton, sitting at special term of the Supreme Court in that city, yesterday granted an order in application of the Attorney General of the State, enjoining the Erie Railway Company by its directors from delivering or transferring any property to a receiver or other person other than the receiver to be appointed by the Court, and naming Hon. Giles W. Hotchkiss, of this city, as referee to take testimony of all matters, transactions, &c., of that company, and to file his reports, with the evidence taken by him, with this court. This action executes the directors of the road against all persons.

Wm. A. Shaw and C. Smith were arrested last night while attempting to break through the partition wall of an adjoining building to reach the vaults of the East River National Bank at 670 Broadway.

A jury at White Plains yesterday rendered a verdict in favor of the claims of Mrs. Catherine Taylor and children to their portion of the property left by Wm. Taylor. Their decision shows her to be his lawful widow.

Movement of Troops.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.

Information has been received from Kansas that Gen. Sheridan's forces are moving from New Mexico for Fort Hays and four other points, in separate columns in the southern country, where the climate is mild, and to which Indians are resorting for winter sojourn.

Gen. Sheridan is establishing a base of supplies on the Canadian river. The indications are his plan of operations will be successful and the Indians summarily punished.

The Indian Agent, Mr. Wynacoop, is apprehensive that innocent Indians will suffer in the campaign, as no discrimination can be made by the commanding general.

The Erie Railroad.

In the Supreme Court to-day, Judge Pierrepont applied to Judge Sutherland for an order vacating Judge Cardozo's stay of proceedings on both parties. Judge Sutherland was willing to grant the order, but would first consult his associates. Judge Nelson's decision has not yet been promulgated.

The Commercial says: The Erie excitement has lost its influence on Wall street. The money market has assumed a confident tone, the banks are lending; money South but are receiving currency from Chicago, the rate of exchange being favorable. The bear effort to depress governments continues, but not much felt.

The Pacific Railroad.

The report of the Commissioners in the Union Pacific Railroad estimate that for the complete equipment of the line to Salt Lake of additional locomotives, cars, &c., for stone structures, several million dollars may be required. It will be recollected that some months ago this railroad company voted to put three million of its own first mortgage bonds in trust for this purpose. The Government now owes the company $4,600,000 for the road already completed. The company has expended six million dollars in grading, rails and supplies beyond the 940 miles already finished.

Resolutions of Condolence.

COLUMBIA, S. C. Dec. 2.

In the House of Representatives to-day resolutions of condolence on the death of Senator Randolph and Representative Martin were adopted. Eulogies were delivered by several members, after which the House adjourned.

Senator E. J. Robinson.

United States Senator L. J. Robinson, who leaves for Washington to-morrow morning, addressed a large Republican meeting this evening.

Order for Execution.

WILMINGTON, Del., Dec. 2.

A special dispatch from Princess Ann, Md., states a warrant has been received for the execution of Wm. Wells, Wm. Wilson, and George Rounds, for the murder of the captain and mate of the schooner Brave in Chesapeak Bay on the 31st of March. The execution is fixed for the 8th day of January.

The Vote of Iowa.

CHICAGO, Dec. 2.

Full vote of Iowa has been received: Total vote, 194,537; Grant's majority, 46,270.

Electoral College.

ALBANY, Dec. 2.

Electoral college this morning cast 33 votes for Seymour and Blair.

PETROLEUM MARKETS.

OFFICE OF THE MORNING HERALD, TITUSVILLE, Dec. 2, 1868—5 P. M.

The Petroleum market was quiet to-day, the reported transactions having aggregated but 3,400 barrels. The demand was again principally for Cleveland, and the greater part of the amount that changed hands was for that market. There were two or three purchases by local refiners to cover Refined recently sold at New York. At points between Petroleum Centre and Oil City, buyers were offering $4.10 and $4.15 and at that place from $4.40 to $4.50. A large part of the production is still being held at from $4.25 to $4.75 along the Creek, and from present appearances it is not likely that at the out-side, more than two-thirds of the production will be sold at whatever prices may rule, providing that they are lower than at present, during the next fifteen or twenty days.

The advance in the New York Central caused great strength in the market, and Erie jumped to 41½, causing much surprise, but there being no apparent reason for an advance it fell to 38. The market was generally strong at the close, but the change in others is not very material. Transactions in Express stock have been somewhat embarrassed by the premature closing of transfer books of the American Company, at two days notice, which cuts off stockholders at a distance from having their stock transferred. It follows that a large class of holders will be without a title to the new stock. Upon board has determined that under the circumstances the American is a good discovery. The regular board has requested the American Company to reopen their books, and received the reply that the Company is no longer in existence.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

Public Notice—To all whom it may Concern.—The undersigned hereby give notice to manufacturers and parties making, selling or using Drilling Jars made of wrought iron and steel combined, that by virtue of certain assignments duly recorded at the United States Patent Office, we own the sole and absolute right, title and interest in three patents for Drilling Jars; one granted to James C. Bostman, in July, 1867, and two to Edward Guilled, in May, 1868; said patents covering all jars, made of wrought iron and steel combined, and applied substantially in the manner represented in said patents and generally known as steel jars. Any further information desired relating to said patents can be had by application to the undersigned.

All parties who shall hereafter manufacture, sell or use the same without license from the owners of said patents, will be prosecuted for infringement according to law, and all who have heretofore infringed on said patents, can arrange with the undersigned if they so desire.

Varieties

—Congress will convene on Monday next

—New counterfeit ten dollar greenbacks are in circulation

—Our Monthly Petroleum Report will appear on Saturday

—Humpty Dumpty appears to-night at the Opera House, Petroleum Center, with all his surprising tricks, fine music, scenery, marvelous changes, and laughable transformations

—Sherry and his fine company appear to-night at Bacom's Hall, Oil City, in the beautiful Irish drama of "The Colleen Bawn, or the Brides of Garryowen," to be followed by the roaring farce of the "Irish Tiger"

—The Washington Reporter says "It is generally supposed that Gen Irwin will be re elected State Treasurer There will be no opposition, as it is customary to give the incumbent three terms He has made a most excellent financial officer, and has performed his duty with ability and straight-forward honesty

—Corinthian Hall is being refitted with new scenery, &c, preparatory to the appearance, on Monday evening, of J F Sherry and his popular troupe, with several new and very fine scenes, and this talented company of artists, we feel safe in saying, the drama never had better representatives in the oil region, and some attractive pieces will be presented during their stay

—On Monday night last, a man named James McClellan, who was employed at a well on the Hamburg Petroleum Company's tract, Upper Cherry Run, got his hand caught between the shaft of a bull wheel and a cable, with which a set of tools were being raised out of a well, and was dragged to the shaft, the cable meantime winding around him and almost instantly crushing him to death

—Miss Olive Logan is to lecture in Corinthian Hall on Christmas night Her first lecture, "Stage Struck," gained an unequalled popularity, but she has a new one, entitled "Paris City Luxury, which she is said to prefer to the former The name of Logan is an honored one, and Miss Olive is the fairest scion of the histrionic stock To hear her lecture is to see her act and to read her literary work at the same time

—The U S District Court convened at Pittsburgh on Monday Owing to continued illness, Judge McCandless is still unable to hold Court, and by his direction the Clerk called the panel of jurors and announced to the bar that the cases remaining on the October calendar were continued for trial at the special term, to be held on the fourth Monday of January next.—Also, that it was ordered by the Court that a venire facias issue for twenty-three Grand and forty Petit Jurors, returnable at Erie on the first Monday of January.

—Walter Brown, the oarsman of the Smoky City, has concluded arrangements for attempting a feat which, if successful, will associate his name with one of the most wonderful aquatic feats on record He proposes, on a wager of $1,000, to row from Pittsburgh to Cincinnati in eight consecutive days from the time of starting, using a scull boat and rowing only between sunrise and sunset The distance is five hundred miles, and to be successful he will be compelled to row an average distance of sixty-two and one-half miles every day

—The Philadelphia papers state that when the orders for coal from the dealers East are filled, there will be a large supply from the mines and high prices cannot be kept up by speculators.—By an act of the Assembly of Pennsylvania, passed last winter, railroad corporations are forbidden from increasing the rates of transportation of coal above a schedule of tariff named in the enactment regulating transportation from the coal mines of the Keystone State In Philadelphia city the best of stove coal is selling at retail, delivered, at $5 50 and $6 00 per ton, and the purchaser receives the full weight of 2240 pounds

IMPORTANT TO LIQUOR DEALERS —Owners of liquors, or those having them in possession, who have not made the return required by the act of July 20th last, will bear in mind that the act provides, "that any person owning or having in his possession any distilled spirits, intended for sale, exceeding in quantity fifty gallons, and not in a bonded warehouse," at the time the act took effect, shall make return of the same to the collector of internal revenue of the proper district. Blanks can be obtained at the collector's office, and those who have neglected to make such return should give the subject immediate attention

NOTICE TO GAS CONSUMERS.—Mr Branigan, who has for sale "the lava-tipped Gas Burner," will remain at the American Hotel for a few days longer, and receive orders for the same. It has been adopted in most of our stores in this city, where gas is used, and is used for lighting streets and houses throughout the country It economizes 40 per cent. of fuel, it never corrodes nor wears out, and secures a more brilliant light than any other metal or brass burner, as is already well known in this city

The Press vs. the Throne

Napoleon is now engaged in a controversy with the Liberal Press of France and is likely to get the worst of it. He should have followed Polonius' advice when he told his son to "beware of entrance to a quarrel," but he seems disposed to verify the next axiomatic link of the old Danish courtier, by bearing himself "that the opposed may beware of him." He has made, however, a most unfortunate issue for himself, and success will even cost him more dear than defeat. The origin of the difficulty was a simple one It appears to be a beautiful custom of the Parisians to repair to the graves of their friends and to keep a sad festival of the dead by decorating their last resting places with flowers and garlands On the the last memorial day, in the cemetery of Montmartre, the hitherto neglected and unmarked grave of Alphonse Baudin was discovered, and made the scene of these accustomed rites of devout affection This was not all A leading liberal paper, the Avenir National, announced the project of erecting a monument to the memory of Alphonse Baudin, and a few days later published a subscription list The Tuileries took fright. Napoleon was disturbed with painful memories, and still more anxious apprehensions And why? Who was Alphonse Baudin? Baudin was simply a representative of the people in the National Assembly of 1848 So was Napoleon! he, too, professed like Baudin to be a Republican, and with Baudin when he took his seat, took an oath of fidelity to the French Republic Napoleon in a few brief years insinuated himself, under the same guise of devotion to the Republic, into the Presidency, and then swiftly followed his coup d'etat, he dissolved the National Assembly, put a great number of its members under arrest, sent the leading men to prison, declared Paris in a state of seige, and the resistants were by orders to his soldiery shot down in the streets, he changed the Republic to an Empire, and the President became Dictator Alphonse Baudin was one of the victims of the coup d'etat shot while shouting to the people in the Rue de Cotte, "Vive la constitution! Vive la Republique!" his body was pierced by the bullets of the Usurper's birelings It is a tender yet terrible evidence of the deathless spirit of liberty which the iron heel of the Napoleonic Empire cannot crush out, that after the lapse of seventeen years Baudin is recognized as a Martyr by his countrymen, that the great men of France, the powerful Press, the Avenir National not only but the Temps, the Siecle, the Journal de Paris vie in their zeal for raising to the memory of Baudin a fitting monument and testimonial But the Emperor has gone too far to recede with safety, if not with honor He must proceed with his prosecutions, with fine and imprisonment with muzzling the Press, and stifling free discussion Only by such extremeties can he hold his seat, and every day that he rules only by the instruments of fear and violence, he only adds to the insecurity and perils that environing him

What Constitutes Delivery—Commercial Law

As the question of what constitutes the delivery of goods from a vessel, has long been the subject of controversy between ship owners and consignees of cargoes, and has led to an endless repetition of litigation, a recent decision of Judge Blatchford of the United States District Court of New York in an action against the steamer Santee to recover for a short delivery of cotton in 1866, is of special interest to the commercial community It appears that one hundred and forty two bales of cotton were shipped from Mobile by the steamer Santee to Sawyer, Wallace & Co, of New York, for which the customary bills of lading, containing the following clause, were issued 'It is expressly understood that the articles named in this bill of lading shall be at the risk of the owner, shipper or consignee thereof as soon as delivered from the tackles of the steamer at her port of destination, (the collector of the port being hereby authorized to grant a general order of discharge immediately after the entry of the ship,) and they shall be received either at New York or Brooklyn by the consignees thereof, package by package, as so delivered, and, if not taken away the same day by him, they may, at the option of the steamer's agents, be sent to store, or permitted to lay where landed at the expense and risk of the aforesaid owner, shipper or consignee.' Besides this cotton, the steamer had five hundred and sixty eight bales for other consignees On the discharge of the vessel, only one hundred and twenty nine of the one hundred and and forty two bales, specified in the afore mentioned bills of lading, were found to correspond with the marks and numbers whereupon Sawyer, Wallace & Co brought an action to recover five thousand dollars the alleged value of the missing five bales of cotton on the ground that the mode of delivery was irregular, or contrary to usage The pith of the argument of Judge Blatchford, in summing up, is shown in the following comprehensive extract 'The general law in the case of an ordinary bill of lading, containing merely the usual clause for delivery to the consignee at the port named, is well established, that delivery on the wharf of goods transported by the vessel is sufficient, provided due notice be given to the consignee, and provided also the different consignments are properly separated, so as to be open to inspection by their respective owners, and a fair opportunity is afforded to the consignee to remove his goods, but that the carrier is responsible for the value of the goods if he delivers them to the wrong person even though by mistake or imposition" After demonstrating conclusively that the contract was a plain one, that the libelants had it entirely in their power to comply with their terms by stationing a proper person to watch for their cotton as it left the tackles of the vessel for the wharf, supporting his position by copious quotations from analogous decisions the Judge dismissed the libel with cost.

The Late Commodore Kearney

Commodore Lawrence Kearney who died at Perth Amboy, New Jersey, a few days ago, was born at that place on the 20th of November, 1789 Entering the United States naval service as a midshipman in July 1807, he served on gunboats for two years, when he was ordered to the frigate Constitution, and subsequently to the frigate President During the war of 1812 Kearney distinguished himself and was made lieutenant.—Subsequently he was detailed to the West Indies, where he suppressed the pirates under the notorious Gibbs In 1830 he was despatched to the Mediterranean in the sloop-of-war Warren, for the purpose of protecting American commerce from the Greek pirates. The following year he bombarded Miconi, in the Levant, and compelled the pirates to restore property to American citizens whom they had plundered In 1840 he was placed in command of the East India squadron, and rendered important service in extending the trade of Americans with China In 1853 Captain Kearney was placed on the retired list, and in 1866 he was commissioned Commodore With the exception of Rear Admiral Charles Stewart, he was the oldest officer in the naval service of the United States.

Thanksgiving Memories.

The day of Thanksgiving—national in its character, and nearly so in its observance—is past—but though national in its character it has come to be a day in which national events and national blessings are scarcely remembered sacredly. In the society gatherings in the churches reference is usually made to the events of the year, the thanks of the people are given by ministerial proxy for a bountiful harvest, and the sins of the people mourned, but as a people these things are ignored The day which, by our forefathers was reverentially consecrated to a review of the year as furnishing cause for gratitude, has dwindled down to a season for the slaughter offat turkeys, the gathering around the festive board, and the indulgence of cheering recreations And we like it all the better From far and near the long absent are gathered in at the old homestead, and reunited families make merry over the good cheer, with warm hearts from which the incrustations of toil and sorrow effectually melt away Ties of kindred unite themselves with fresh vigor about our lives, and some glimmer of light falls on the darkest path All anniversaries have one sad element in them, because there is one vacancy after another to be noted with each recurrence of the season, and there are few firesides where, amid the unbounded happiness of childhood, and the reflected joys of mature years, there is not some heart quietly keeping down sad memories of a dead Past, lest it should cast a momentary gloom over the merry joyousness of the festal day. But to all of us spiced winds come blowing up from the green fields of childhood, bearing with them dear and precious memories Feet that have wandered in rugged paths come joyfully back on these festival days, to old familiar haunts, and those which cares and griefs have shadowed grow light again in the old hearth at home.

To the younger mind dinner is the great feature of Thanksgiving, and the antecedent visions of plump fowls, mince pies, etc., do not fulfill their purpose unless followed by direful realities born of indigestion For maturer minds there are even keener enjoyments than ever realized in "the days of auld lang syne" In such a circle, on such a day, "the subject of Turkey" being exhausted, and the pastry awaiting attack, the following poem was read in our hearing as accompanying the presentation of a mince pie

A THANKSGIVING LAMENT

Sweet Polly, sweet Polly my own stricken dear,
Don't take this an insult, nor think me quite queer
I made the mince pie, though not very goo',
But have broken my back, having very long stood.
Now when you arrive at a time you can't see,
You may think of these things and think something of me,
That I am a Nothing, you all understand,
And you all a Something, every turn of your hand

Now Polly, dear Polly, don't let us cry,
For many Thanksgivings already gone by!
We will think of the Past and the Present enjoy,
And bless our dear children that are in our employ
If they grow up as wise and useful as we,
They shall make our mince pies and always agree
And work on in patience and toil for the rest
They will be the dear children that we love the best.
Nov 26, 1868 LUCINDA H

The reply, although deferred till the close of the banquet, and solicited by us for publication in connection with the "Lament" is as follows

Dear sister Lucinda, many days have gone by
Since you sent me the gift of a Thanksgiving pie
The pie was delicious, and will you believe
Though twelve sat at board, each a person did receive
Nor need you suppose this was mince pie at all
For the choicest of articles always are small

But when there was added to heighten their pleasure,
Your Thanksgiving greeting in musical measure
Such loud cheers and such shouts, did the reading arouse
If you had been nearer, they'd have brought down the house.
But tell me, Lucinda, how came you a poet?
You can't change have been one, and I not to know it.
Or have you this wonderful gift so long hidden?
That now it bursts forth, like true genius unbidden
Well surely, my sister, most charmingly now,
With a laurel peculiar, it graces your brow
The truth is, Lucinda, that both your heart and mine
Are so stored with bright memories, of dear Auld Lang Syne,
That our feelings and thoughts (as time bears us along,)
Are real poems themselves which are woven to song
And now, my dear sister since I've a secret confessed,
That you sometimes write rhyme, you must make may not rest
On frequent occasions I shall look for your lays
And I assure you may be of a kind sister's praise
Rochester Nov 2 1868 POLLY B B

What better remedy for age, or sorrow, or care than to live life over again on Thanksgiving Day—to recall the many days when life wore only holiday garments and before wrinkles, and spectacles and silvery locks began to admonish us of the oncomings of age

Pleasantville Items.

THE HAWKS WELL

The "Hawes" well is another splendid strike made yesterday on territory hitherto undeveloped It is located on the a twenty acre tract owned by Hawes, Anderson & Carroll and situated immediately east of the Holman and New kirk tract. The Hawes well is at the northern part of the tract It commenced pumping Tuesday evening, and is producing considerable over one hundred barrels per day Mr C I Hawes, of Buffalo, is half owner of the working interest of the well, as also one half owner of the tract on which it is located Mr. Hawes bought the land in 1865 for $10,500, which was a "fancy" price for land held in so low estimation as the territory in this vicinity has been until the developments of the past year When the "Harmonial No. 1" was struck about a year ago, Mr Hawes sold an undivided half of his farm to Geo. K. Anderson and R Carroll for $6 000 The farm is probable as valuable as any other tract in the district, and we congratulate Mr Hawes, who has seen the ups and downs of life in the oil regions, upon his present good fortune and future prospects

NEW WELL ON THE HINCKLEY AND PARKE TRACT

A new well was tested on this tract yesterday morning It is lease No 22 and located about the centre of the tract. It is owned by J A. Vrooman and J G Ellison, of Oil City, and is said to be producing seventy five to one hundred barrels per day This is the second well Mr Vrooman has struck within a few days, and another one of his will be tested on the Porter farm in a day or two We congratulate him on his good luck

CAN A WIFE BE A PARTNER IN BUSINESS WITH HER HUSBAND?—A case came up in Buffalo before the Supreme Court, Judge Barker, last week, in which this question was at issue The case was Spellman et al vs Colwell & Co The plaintiffs reside in New York city, and the defendants in Buffalo The action was brought to recover for the sale of goods to the firm of Colwell & Co. The defence set up a non joinder of parties, claiming that the wife of the defendant, Colwell, should have been made a defendant in the case, for the reason that she had a joint interest in the business with her husband; that at the time of the creation of the firm she and her husband put in an equal amount of capital and that the capital put in by her was her own separate property; and that although wife of the defendant she could be his partner Judge Barker decided that a man's wife could not be his partner in business, and ordered judgment for the plaintiff for the amount sued for The Courier states that the defendant's counsel intend to appeal the case, claiming that a woman has a right under the present statutes of New York, to invest her money as she pleases, and that she can become a partner in business with her husband

TO OIL OPERATORS.—The attention of practical oil men is directed to Jennings & Dallas's Wrought Iron Working barrels for oil wells. Their advertisement will be found on the fourth page. For sale corner of Pine and Martin streets.

THE Family Washington Hotel of Washington, D C., Rev. John C Smith, D. D., pastor, celebrated its annual anniversary on Thanksgiving Day, the 26th ult There were twenty of the original members who twenty years ago, of whom but three or four survive, including Prof J P Brown and his wife, now of Pleasantville, Pa. Mr Smith is now in the eighth year of his Pastorate, during which 1,100 additions have been made to the Church Membership Mr Smith preached the funeral discourse on the death of General Winfield Scott.

We are having a great many inquiries for Sewing Machines from various parts of the country, and as we cannot conveniently reply to them all by mail, we have thought it proper to state our opinion in regard to them in this public manner We have used the "WHEELER & WILSON" and we can say in regard to it, that it is WITHOUT A RIVAL. It is simple, not easily put out of order, and, in point of effectiveness and finish, no other machine stands ahead of it.
